GOLDMINE

- In September, Hikutini joined fellow teammates as the 49ers hosted the Annual 49ers Mentorship Academy in partnership with USA Football. The Mentorship Academy is a three-step program designed to develop the skills necessary for players to succeed and lead on and off the field. Alongside other 49ers rookies, Hikutini was able to spend the evening leading local high school football players through a fun-filled evening of leadership development. Said Hikutini, "It was really cool being able to tell my story and play a part in teaching these young guys leadership skills on and off the field. What more can you ask for?"
- Hikutini credits his parents in developing his drive to succeed on and off the field. After attending FBS Sacramento State and redshirting as a freshman, Hikutini transferred to City College of San Francisco in efforts to earn a scholarship to a bigger program. "I have to give it to my mom and my dad. They both pushed me, each in their own way," said Hikutini who was able to earn a scholarship to the University of Louisville after just one season at CCSF. "I'm an only child. Obviously you meet people and make friends in high school and college, but it's my parents who have always been the most influential people in my life."

HIKUTINI'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- His last name is pronounced hick-uh-TEA-knee
- When not playing football, Hikutini lists hunting as one of his favorite hobbies away from the game.
- From 2012-13, attended Sacramento State and played alongside current 49ers practice squad member, WR DeAndre Carter.
